From the New York Disputch, Oct. 1, 1859. SOMETHING FOR THE LADIES -A new invention has recently appeared, which, although useful to everybody, is specially claimed by the Ladies, as being exactly suited to their wants and requirements. They are delighted with Spalding's Prepared Glue. It brings up no disagreeable associations of sticky glue pots and stifling odors, but is merely a clear transparent liquid, in a pretty little bottle, with a small accompanying brush, fit to stand on the daintiest toilet gable in all the land, with cologne and China trifles. And so useful it proves, too, if any accident happens to the ten thousand little knick-knacks that ladies delight in. No sending to the manufacturer for repairs, at an expense scarcely less than would attend the purchase of a new article. A few of the Crystal drops, skillfully applied by fair fingers, will set all right. For furniture, for work-boxes, for books, for everything, it is a perfect little family physician! The amount of money that one of these bottles can gave in a month, would seem almost incredible, and Ladies rely on their Prepared Glue as a sort of a magician that can effect everything. And they know, too. When any article of domestic form meets the enthusiastic sanction at their hands that Spalding's Prepared Glue has received, you may be pretty sore tis something worth having on your closet shelf. june20-2w

Bricks Goes Fishing with Blynnks-Letter from Bricks.

NASHVILLE, June 26, 1860.

GENTLEMEN:-I see from the Patriot that you have been fishing with BLYNNES. I have been fishing with BLYNNES myself. He's a irst rate fellow to go fishing with, but exensive. I don't want to hurt his feelings but I must say that BLYNNES is not a cheap fellow to go fishing with. In fact, it costs something to go fishing with BLYNNES. It may cost something to go fishing with other people also, but my experience only embraces BLYNNES. He's as good a fellow as lives, tried it, and ought to know that it costs like Last Thursday was too weeks ago, I received a note from BLYNNES. I paid the boy who brought it a quarter in compliance with a verbal message from BLYNNES. I've got the note in my vest pocket now. No I have n't either-yes I have too. Here it is:

BEAR BRICKS;-I'm going fishing to-morrow, and ant you to go too. We'll have a glorious time. the season, and it shan't cost you a cent-iot a red. I shall insist on coming down for the entire swindle myself. You must go-in fact you shall go.

Hastily, P. S .- Please loan me five dollars. Send it by the boy. Will hand it back the day after to-morrow If you've nothing less than a ten, don't trouble ourself to get it broke; send it along; it's all the ne. Besides I meant to say ten at first, but mad mistake and said five. Ten or litteen either-it's o difference to me. I can hand you oze smount as

I sent the money and promised to go .thout 12 o'clock that night I got another note from BLYNNES, in which he suggested that as we would probably be gone all day, I'd better turn out and have a ham, a couple of chickens, and half a peck of biscuits rejected, and those who are able to pay in cooked to take along with us. Mrs. BLYNNES, he added, was not in his confidence for the occasion, or he would n't trouble me to supply the commissary department of the ex-

Early next morning BLYNNES called around, and we began at once to make preparations to go. BLYNNES went out, and soon came in again with a basket containing dozen bottles of wine and other cooling drinks suitable for taking a-fishing-some stronger, but none weaker. Also a box of eigars. Likewise a couple of tumblers. In cluding a corkscrew. These articles cost enough to be of the best quality, and no doubt were. At least I thought so when I paid the bill, which was sent around with them at BLYNNES' request. We then went up on College street, where BLYNNES purchased a fine chance of poles, reels and snoods, a couple of minnow buckets and the same number of ame-bags. He was also about to lay in a louble-barrel shot-gun and a full set of Scorr's novels; but I told him I thought I didn't have enough money to pay for more than we had already got (he had requested the dealer to hand me the bill for settlement,) and remarking that he would wait till he caught me in funds, he led the way to the livery-stable. Here BLYNNES ordered the best horse and buggy in the establishment, observing that he did n't care himself, but that he had invited me to go a-fishing with him, and he'd be hanged if he'd suffer me to pay for an inferior article of turnout. We eins, we drove off across College Hill towards Stone's River, where we proposed to spend the day in fishing. About four miles from town, BLYNNKS WE have received a small lot of Apple Brandy from North Carolina, said to be stated years old, which we believe to be strictly pure, and as represented.

Wanted to get out at a spring and uncork one of the bottles. Which we did. But one bottle is n't much in a crowd as large as BLYNNKS wanted to get out at a spring and uncork one tle is n't much in a crowd as large as BLYNNKS and myself, and hence we uncorked two. In fact, several-say eight or ten. If there was one we didn't uncork, it was owing to some oversight on the part of BLYNNES. We then got into the buggy again, (with the assistance of a colored person who wanted the empty bottles and eigar-box), and started on towards Stone's River to fish. But some how or other BLYNNES found out the horse and buggy had got turned around while we were at the spring, the horse having his head, as BLYNNKs said, pointing right between the twin towers of the First Presbyterian Church. So BLYNNES turned him round again, and we started to Stone's River to fish, BLYNNES thrashed the horse with a fishing-pole, and sang a song very loud indeed. I think the song was something about-"My wife is sick, my wife is sick, My wife is sick, in bed; My wife is sick, she's always sick—

I wish that she were dead."

I remonstrated with BLYNNES, and suggested that he might disturb the neighbors and cause us to be arrested for driving a disorderly buggy; but BLYXXKS only said "the neighbors," and as I did n't desire to encourage anything like profanity, I dropped the subject. I think we must have been goand the other mixed up with his tail, and he knocked in the spatter-board with his heels, and shot out of the road, and jumped over a pile of logs, and left the vehicle a miserable wreck among them, BLYNNES and I went on after him a considerable distance before we lit. From this I am induced to believe that we were going rather fast. BLYNNES borrowed a blind mule and started back to town, to tell the people, he said, that they straddle of a three-story load of wood to go on to Stone's River after the horse. But some how or other, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, I got to the top of College Bill, "liberally paid for."

while BLYNNES was somewhere about Stone's

River. BLYNNES says we must have got turned around again after we left the The livery stable man only charged me fifty dollars for breaking the buggy and scaring his horse (which, I have since learned, had never run away but three or four times before), on condition that I would take the buggy off his hands at one-half of one per cent. under cost, and when I gave him my note for the amount, BLYNNES remarked that as the vehicle had n't been in me, and that it was unjust in me not to pay him the cush. Which I would have done cheerfully, but BLYNNES had torn his cont and pants, and smashed his hat when we ran into that pile of logs, and as he said it would n't have happened if he had n't invited me to go fishing with him, that he had submitted the case to Mrs. BLYNNES and his mother-in-law as arbitrators, and that they had decided that I ought to repair the damages, and so I had paid for a new suit of clothes, including a hat, two pair of boots.

and a pocket-knife, all by himself; conscquently, I was short of funds. Now I want to know what I am to think of BLYNNES. He distinctly stated when he invited me to go fishing with him, that it should n't cost me a cent-not a red. But cast your eye over the figures below, and tell me candidly if they indicate that the statement of BLYNNES is borne out by the result here given. For my part, I can't think it is. This, I need not tell you, is a

I like BLYNNES. I hav n't known him long but I have courted his society from the start, I may add, and without egotism too, that he has courted my society from the start also. He has been so kind as to evince his friendship for me by borrowing five, ten or fifteen dollars of me from time to time, which he no doubt intends to repay when he " comes into his property" (which he tells me is large), and but he won't do to go fishing with. At a meeting of a portion of the delegates last evening at the Court House, it was authoritatively announced that delegates and all others who join the excursion will be taken to Clarksville and back by rail at balffare ($2.40,) or one fare for both ways. It was therefore determined to take the Cl A. M. train Thursday morning. Passengers will be taken from Springfield at the same rates, (half the usual fare.) The delegation has employed Horn's Silver Band for the excursion. A grand reception will be given to the excursionists at Clarksville by the "Clarksville Bell Ringers," under the command of Capt. FRANK BEAU-

Excursionists can return the same day, leaving Clarksville at 3 P. M., and arriving in this city at 7 P. M.

It is anticipated that a large crowd will join the excursion. Let the friends of BELL and EVERETT, and all opposed to sectionalism and disunion, rally to-morrow morning, of the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad depot, at 6 o'cleck.

"RIDDLEBERGER'S."-Everybody in Nashville, and for a hundred miles around, knows where "Sam Riddleberger's" is-he knows that it is in the Colonnade Building, on the corner of Cherry and Deaderick streets-and that if he wants a first rate breakfast, or a first rate dinner, or a first rate supper, he has but to drop in at any hour and signify his wish to the aldermanic and fine-looking proprietor of the institution, and it will be set before him in the shortest space of time the law allows. When anything rare is to be had, whether it has to come from the savannals of the South, the mountains of the North, or the prairies of the West, RIDDLE-BERGER has it. He was serving up tomatoes and other vegetables to his customers this spring before a great many people found out such thing had been planted.
